This is one that I've had floating around for a long time, but I have an itch to actually do something with it, so here we are. I've mentioned before that many of my ideas are based on the premise that no one is as good at being a weather forecast as I am. It really is my favourite thing in the world to do. The crucial thing about being a weather forecaster is that you have to watch and read everything that's coming in, and have an idea of what's going to come, and play with that. It's harder than you might think to be original at this, but anyone with a little creativity and a lot of dedication can pull it off. "But I'd be really bad at it," I hear you say. Of course, you'

Clicking on "Settings" or "Settings/Addons" will yield these system calls: Audio Editor Gold 9.2.19.1 Free Download Latest Working Free VersionQ: There is a person in my neighborhood that is regularly taunting me in Korean A few times a day a man in his late 40's will walk by my house yelling at my dog in Korean. It sounds like this: "baka (dog) haeyo (dog) (hi dog) baka (dog) haeyo" as he continues to yell at the dog. He never stops yelling at the dog and I am positive it is the same man. It seems like he targets me as I own the dog and he knows that I speak a little bit of Korean. I am surprised that it is never the same man and that he is apparently walking by the house several times a day and he yells at the dog more than once. Is there any good way I can report this to the police? Is there a particular department that I can report this to? I will add an update here. My house is in Los Angeles and his behavior is occurring in the next town over. If I knew that his house was on the other side of the city I would call the police myself and save myself the trouble. A: The LAPD does not respond to general "joe average" calls. And getting a civilian to do it would be suicide for them, because it gives them no leverage to get anyone to do anything on behalf of the LAPD. If you're absolutely sure it's the same guy you need to contact your local police department (I'm assuming there is one in your county) and inform them of the problem. If he is yelling to himself or perhaps even to people who are with him, you could, if you really wanted, attempt to get some recording of what he is saying. If you are certain there is a chance that he is yelling at you, that might be useful evidence to have. You could also try finding out what he is saying (perhaps even asking some acquaintances, or even the people who are with him) if you want to catch this guy in a lie. If you don't want to bother, but rather just want to write it off as none of your business, and he's just an idiot, maybe you could move somewhere else. LONDON - There is a growing demand for
