Real-life player data from all 22 players were collected using the proprietary OPTIX System™ and powerful workstations. Each player wore a Real Player Motion System (RPM) helmet. Using high fidelity sensors and the power of OptiTrack's Razor™ motion capture system, we monitored the movements of each player on every play, frame by frame. The collection and management of this data was done by OptiTrack's own Visual Sports Group. We captured and analysed the motions and actions of each player and incorporated their data into a motion-based, ground-breaking engine. This gave us the power to realise the game in motion and not just in still images, which is the process currently used. With 23 years of global football experience, we have combined cutting-edge technology with our years of knowledge and tested how it changes gameplay. FIFA 20 used an accurate, light-weight technology that allowed players to run and tackle like their real-life counterparts. This only takes into account the movement of the feet and didn't consider other movements or circumstances. FIFA 22, is the first simulation in history that considers every player's movements in every facet of football: from pitch-side camera angles, through all sorts of actions and collisions to the goalkeeper's technique and off-the-ball movements. The trial data we collected is 100% match-approved by our contracted UEFA technical advisors and is being used to ensure the game can deliver authentic and immersive match experience. We worked closely with UEFA and OptiTrack to test the data and ensure that the movements we captured didn't distort or capture something that wasn't happening. Although the data is real-time and accurate, there are some things that weren't captured and these include: Attacking and defensive runs and dribbling Player information and how they reacted to individual events GK tactics and GK form Player attributes like speed, height, weight and balance Passing patterns FIFA 22 is the most authentic and interactive soccer experience for any platform. The next step in our quest to make FIFA the most authentic soccer game on console and PC. FIFA 20 introduced running in open play, and with the trial data we captured we were able to make a game that looked more like how a real-life match would look. Going forward, we will be using the exclusive the new

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Latest Performance Predictors Now, using a combination of recent FIFA matches, historical events and playing style data, FIFA 22 classifies players into two performance modes; "B+" (likely to perform) or "B" (likely to underperform). This is a more accurate and measurable system than previous years.
- Get-in-the-Zone Rely on your key passes, crosses, and diagonals more than ever before. Get into the right spot at the right time, and have a shot, with the new get-in-the-zone button. It's the ball control we know and love.
- Collect player voice packs Explore the coolest player character vocal packs from records such as the Spice Girls and Kylie Minogue. Record vocals using the new in-game mic and a selection of official voice-packs to experience new and fresh soccer voices.
- Captain free agent system Offer FIFA a trade now, or wait until next year when you can sign five more players and score big free agent transfers. Sign a maximum of four new captains per year, but pick your best replacement. We're stepping away from using player names for our captain designs.
- Dominate in FIFA online with new authentic goal celebrations and the highly competitive Speed Cup, a new, in-game FIFA tournament system. You'll need to earn your way into a goalkeeper's "Guardian" skin to go head-to-head against them.
- Keep up to date with the latest form data on the first official FIFA 22 matchday! Head into the social media campaign and discover the clubs' social posts.
- Introducing the all new "injected Karma" system which benefits both the player and manager. Spend your Management Points to fight off injuries, earn free agents, and collaborate with your club!
- The proprietary FIFA 22 Engine has over 1300 innovations built-in, including "True Player Intelligence," where players exhibit increased awareness of opposing players and the ball.
- Keep an eye on friendlies and analyse archived matches to create better tactical squads.
