The core gameplay is improved on the goalkeepers AI, we also introduced a new dedicated Releaser scouting feed which for the first time allows users to subscribe to a specific club official at any given time to receive a daily feed of targeted player scouting. A new Overpass Style Play allows for improved and easier 2 vs 2 scenarios as it allows users to push and pull the opposition players towards their own goal. Improved Free Kicks, Penalty kicks and Player Control (Overpass, Tackles and Interceptions) give us an advantage when creating these situations in the scoring area. To enhance the experience the new Tactical Evolution revamps the player, kits and media engine. Together with the inclusion of the new data engine, HyperMotionTech, our aim was to create the best football experience for players, clubs and fans. Check out the Interactive FIFA 21 Video: Check out our BTS footage: Today, EA SPORTS has released the Official Screens for FIFA 22, and I have to say, it looks A LOT like FIFA 21 - and I am a BIG fan of that game, as you can see from my FIFA 18 movie review. But I'm sure many of you are wondering: is this just a rebrand of FIFA 21, or is FIFA 22 a totally new game? Read on to find out more... All the screens are below, starting from the very top-left of the images. This is the Reveal Trailer, which can be viewed below. Let's start with the Reveal Trailer: Gorgeous, right? What I especially like is the pace of the camera, especially at the beginning when we see the defender hanging off of the wall, and then the slide off the wall to give us the perfect view to see Edinson Cavani fire the ball into the net. What really jumped out at me though was the Movecast Technology AI - you can see how the AI interacts with the ball, and the defender. I like this style. Another great thing is the movement of the animation. You can see the weights of the movement that the animation has. One thing I don't like is the celebration. I think it's too high up in the corner and there's a slight delay before the celebration starts. There's a slight delay before the celebration starts. A new Story Trailer features the four main men from FIFA 18: Neymar, Luis Suarez, Lionel Messi and Cristiano Ronaldo. In the Goalkeeper AI Trailer, you get
