A minor third bonus LP by the legendary YMO. In this game, you get to make your very own LSD! In this minimalistic LSD, travel from city to city, with friends, and do your own thing. -Psychedelic. -Fun. -Bizarre. -This small FPS is still a unique experience. This is the purest LSD you can experience. Features: -No Unity, and no Asset Store. -No text, no effects, no colors, no story. -Random levels. -No controller. -Can be played both in keyboard mode, and gamepad. -No menu. -No HUD. -5 levels (2 for each of the 5 main people you meet). -Good FPS overall. -Classic LSD experience. -No NPC's. -No bugs or glitches. -Exclusive tracks from YMO (Thanks to hero_seven). -No blood or gore. -No loading times. All the audio is handmade by me, and all the music is exclusive to this game. Thanks for making this game a reality! IMPORTANT! Listen to the track before purchasing from the Steam store, if you care about the quality of the content you are getting. You can enjoy the soundtrack (in both MP3 format, and low-quality FLAC for absolute satisfaction).  Visit www.yomusic.co.uk  This is a music game, where you can make your own LSD, and have your friends' experience. You can meet 5 different people, and see where their story goes. * You can choose your preference for music, from YMO's original version, to the version that didn't even make the record. * The game play consists of going from location to location, talking to people, and doing whatever you want. In addition to exploring, you can also enjoy playing musical instruments by pressing space. You can also say Hi to random people that will approach you, and they might be able to help you. * You have 6 different unique guns. * You can switch between view modes, which gives you different perspectives of the game. * You can choose the difficulty level (Easy/Hard/Insane). * You can change the FPS / Latency. * You have 4 different types of guns. * Your character can be controlled by the WASD

We learned yesterday that this 1707 equated to "the best year in England for a century" during the reign of William and Mary. Although slightly exaggerated, this assessment is not totally off base, as British victory on the 15th of September 1707 in the Battle of Chesapeake Bay is considered one of the most important events in the history of England. This song has a long history of being used in England to commemorate the victory, as it dates back to the 1720s, when it was played on an organ or in a choir. It also has the distinction of being the first victory song to be adopted in the US, being played from 1757 to 1913. This blog has been continually updated since 2005 to record various stories and remembrances of Admiral Shovell, but we have elected to discontinue the posts. We have also included a link to another blog that we hope will continue to chronicle the Admiral's life and legacy. "Cloudies Legacy" Wednesday, September 9, 2013 Two years after this successful manoeuvre, Shovell's flagship, the 50-gun Vanguard, sailed under Captain Sir Cloudesley Shovell in order to avoid taking part in the Battle of Toulon, which was a disaster for the British Navy. The fleet was then blockaded in Brest, when an invasion fleet intended for the Dutch Island of Walcheren was discovered. A storm was raised and the fleet was scattered with only 47 of the 68 ships reaching port. The loss of 60 ships, the injury of about 20,000 men, and the death of Shovell himself all culminated in the efforts of the "victorious" Admiral Shovell. Because of these actions the 'Good Admiral' became a subject of parody and song. It is also referred to as 'Our Good Admiral

The UK shopping slump is hitting the more affordable Casual Male wear line Auzzie Clothing. After making a fine decision to abandon the image of a loud-mouthed office worker for a more laid-back and casual choice, Liz has always worn it with pride. "I have always encouraged men to dress casually but the problem I've come across is that the smart Casual male wear is too expensive, particularly for younger men. "Jackets are the main problem. They are all too expensive for some of the younger people and I'm very conscious of this. There are too many jackets priced towards the more serious work-type of man." However Auzzie's debut women's and children's label, In Louder Too, has already proved to have a fairly quick sell through. "We are aimed at the more casually-dressed, younger, commercial man, rather than the keen farmer or keen hunter," Liz explains. "I used the word casual, which I know is a very difficult one, but we wanted to look at the market that thinks about bringing in just one jacket and perhaps another pair of trousers." For both Liz and the people like the ones who she is targeting, the least they want is second-hand sport coats and designer suits. While Liz continues to see her collection delivered with the same "casual" connection, the range is expanding to include sports coats, polo shirts, t-shirts and sweatshirts. She believes that the success of the first two collections was precisely because of their reasonable price. "We can't break the bank, but we have tried to make things that are right for the customer and right for the economy. We want to be realistic, to live within our means, yet be fashionable. We are a country that likes to boast that it is a fair-trader." Auzzie's first advertising campaign includes a series of radio, cinema, outdoor, newspaper, magazine and television commercials. The campaign asks the question, "What do you choose to wear when you're not working?" and encourages all types of men to claim their "jackets". In referring to its fast-selling slogan, Liz admits she is "never going to get rich, but we are really happy to be making a reasonable amount of money while we sort out exactly what we need to do." Illustrated in black, white and grey, Auzzie's new "Soft Casual
