Stortion Strike Jetpack belongs to the sub-genre "Multi-part Vehicles". In other words, the propulsion system comes in several distinct, independent pieces that can be easily attached and detached. Hover board designs vary wildly, ranging in shape, size, power, efficiency and maintenance requirements.Fort Brown Fort Brown, also known as Camp San Antonio, is a former U.S. Army outpost established on the Lavaca River in what is now Val Verde County, Texas, in 1858. The Mission Barrios were built in two parts. The first was a stockade containing a main building and a chapel, the second was a wall to protect the rest of the mission site with a garden on the outside the stockade. The mission is also considered the oldest in Texas. It is located within the -long Fort Brown State Historic Site, which is owned and operated by the state of Texas. The mission underwent over ten years of restoration by the Texas Historical Commission and more recent restoration was completed by Cargill Triton Construction. History The mission was founded as a Spanish military fort in the Llanura del Valle region, just east of the sisal plants and cotton industry that grew in San Antonio de Béxar, in the early 18th century. Much of the population of the region was Guachichiles, nomadic hunter-gatherers of the Chihuahuan Desert. The Spanish arrived from Mexico during the 1500s, initially fleeing a wave of Moctezuma rebelling indigenous peoples. During that time, they built several forts in the region (such as the San Antonio de Valero) and Spanish influence grew rapidly over the region. San Antonio de Béxar, which had lost its mission status during the Conquest of New Mexico in the early 18th century and was recaptured by the Spanish in the Battle of Béxar in early 1836, lacked the military capabilities to repel the northern Mexicans, and retreated down the Rio Grande on 1836. This weakened Spain's hold over the area, and nomadic hunter-gatherers decided to move to other regions, such as the Ogallala Plains. Spanish land grants in the 1820s allowed many immigrants from Nicaragua, Mexico, and Spain to move into the area. The region became a hideaway for outlaws. By the mid-1850s, the region was controlled by supporters of the United States' impending war with Mexico. Silver
