The Guardians of the Galaxy wrap up shooting on the first two of their planned trilogy of films today, and soon after we're bound to see the trailer. Interestingly, Marvel have released a new photo that's as old-school as it gets; it's a film's first official still from the upcoming sci-fi space adventure, and it features young Star-Lord and The Hulk. Fueled by his restored faith in the power of love, Star-Lord sets out on a personal journey to find the elusive Ego the Living Planet, on an adventure that will take him to new worlds, and combat new foes with new allies. Gamora, Drax, Rocket, Groot and the rest will join Star-Lord to form a team that's outfitted with a host of flashy new armor, and though a return to cosmic-level powers would be expected of The Hulk, we imagine it will likely feel entirely different to his previous outings. On top of that, Guardians is following in the footsteps of Iron Man, Thor and Captain America by breaking away from its original, much-derided comics style. Yeah, it's got its share of character designs that definitely look more like a kid's Lego set than a graphic novel, but who cares? A few months ago you'd have had the same objections when filmmakers were taking a stab at a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles movie. We'll find out the details come next month when Guardians of the Galaxy finally opens. Until then, check out this new image and maybe even fire up your sound player. It's a nice snapshot of a thoroughly enjoyable summer season, and something that we're very much looking forward to.FIG. 1 illustrates a structure of an exemplary wireless communication system supporting a communication method defined in Long Term Evolution (LTE) Release 8.
