there are 2 choices in the advanced license file: number 1: "xxx" number 2: "yyy" type in a number: 1 select a license to generate: 2 enter the key of a master license that you own: xxyy sample output: there are a variety of different ways to use this function. it can generate a simple master license for you, or it can generate an advanced license that can include more information that "standard" license generated by iloadadvancedlicense . master license files are usually used to generate a report of the current license for the government. for example, they might be used to generate a log of each license that has been submitted to the government. the license number and name of the purchaser are typically recorded in the license. this is common with retail or import/export licenses. the example in this function does this. an advanced license is a more complicated license that has additional information in it. for example, it can include the name of the licensee, the value of the license, a serial number, or a bar code. typically, this is not used for retail or import/export licenses, but this function can be used to generate an advanced license that can include the purchaser's name. this would make sense, for example, if a license were to include a serial number that would not be readable by the user. it would be common to assign the purchaser a unique serial number for that license. an example of how you might use this would be to include the name of the individual purchaser in an advanced license. this would usually be used if licenses were to include barcodes or serial numbers that would not be readable by a human. in this example, the output file is a simple master license file, but if you did need to generate an advanced license, you would change the file extension of this output file to "lic".
